NEW YORK, May 27.-John G. Winant, United States delegate to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, declared today that the United States "firmly supports" the establishment of a world health

Mr. Winant spoke as the Council began work looking toward the meeting in New York on June 19 of an international health conference which will consider forming a world health organization.

The health organization was the first matter to be taken up formally by the Economic and Social Council after its opening meeting in the United States last Saturday. The Council's agenda is crammed with economic and social problems of the world to be considered during the sessions here.

Would Exclude Some Nations.

Alexandre Parodi of France, president of the Security Council and delegate to the Economic and Social Council, proposed that nations excluded from the United Nations also be barred from the world health organization.

Mr. Parodi did not name any nation, merely saying that some have been barred from the United Nations for some special reasons, but it was recalled that France has joined other members of the United Nations in condemning Franco Spain and has closed the French border to Spain.

A preparatory committee proposed that all states of the world be admitted to the health organization when it is formed.

Sentiment for dropping the controversial Iranian case from the agenda of the Security Council was reported to be increasing today, but War Orphan's Story agenda of the Security Council was there still was no indication when the council would meet.
